At the corner of Orange Avenue and Livingston Street Exhibit open during normal business hours.

Barnett Bank Center welcomes the works of Central Florida artist/sculptor Glenn Dobkin, the first all-sculpture show presented in the building.

Dobkin's work, mainly in metal, consists of whimsical and evocative sculpture using broad planes and edges to define the imagery. His creations range from playful creatures, which appear to float in space, to the darker side of the human condition. Each work seems to have its own life, as no one piece gives reference to another.

Dobkin refers to his work as sketches — always evolving into being. This show is a carefully-selected collection that emphasizes the range and scope of his work.

In addition to the Barnett Bank Center showing, Dobkin's work has been exhibited in the Orlando Museum "Art After Dark" shows, Mount Dora Center for the Arts, Maitland Art Center, Mount Dora Arts Festival and Orlando City Hall. His work is represented in galleries throughout Florida and in many private collections.

You can catch the artist at work at the Crealde School of Art in Winter Park this March where he will conduct a metal workshop. Dobkin has a studio at 1104 N. Mills in Orlando.
